

MilitaryConnection Helps Connect Veterans to Education, Employment and Healthcare

The California Department of Veteran Affairs (CDVA) really appreciates and regularly uses the Military Connection website (www.militaryconnection.com). This website has virtually every type of service and benefit that a veteran would need to make the successful transition from military to civilian life. The employment part of the site is particularly robust and helpful. As we all know, employment is the number one concern of all veterans. The virtual job fair, available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, provides veterans the connections and leads they need to get the gainful employment necessary to support them and their families. The articles, reference material and statistics are helpful for both service providers and the veteran community. We are particularly impressed with the family information available. CDVA strongly supports Military Connection, and has signed an MOU to continue to work with them in support of the 1,970,000 veterans in California. The CEO of Military Connection, Debbie Gregory, is the epitome of service to the veteran community. She works tirelessly to give back to the veteran and military communities for the service they have rendered on behalf of our country. Debbie uses her very valuable connections in the business and entertainment worlds to further the causes of veterans in this country and state. There are not very many veteran service organizations that do not know and do business with Debbie Gregory. She is a veteran's best friend.
